

Teachers:

Calling All Frog Artists!

FROGS ARE GREEN is seeking kids' frog art—lots of it! We hope to encourage kids and their teachers to learn about and get interested in frogs, toads, and other amphibians. If you're an elementary school teacher, parent, or educator, we will be interested in your students' or kids' drawings or paintings of frogs and we will display them in group galleries on the FROGS ARE GREEN website. We'd be happy to receive images of any art form—sculpture, drawing, painting, or watercolor.

If the art work is part of a school project, gather into one bunch. Individual drawings not part of a class project are fine, too. Include the name of your school, state, country (if not the U.S.), grade level, and child's name for each piece of art.

We will open the contest on 7/20/2013.

Visit our site for details on entering:

<http://frogsaregreen.org>

Join our cause to raise awareness about the threats frogs face in the world's changing environment, and to spread the message that healthy frogs mean a healthy planet for all.
